

Gifts for the People in Your Horse's Life

December 2, 2008

Think of everyone who might need a little trinket as a token of thanks for helping make your life with horses possible. Make your list and check it twice. Or maybe three times. Try to avoid that sense of panic that comes from realizing at the last minute that you've left someone important off your gift list. Consider including your farrier, your vet, the gal at the feed store who always fills your order, your riding instructor and your trail riding partner. Once you have your list of gift recipients you can budget better for the frenzied shopping days ahead.
