Don't be shy. Let Santa know what you and your horse are hoping for. Just keep in mind that one bridle looks just like the next one to someone who's unfamiliar with tack. So that Auntie Tricia and dear Nana don't end up purchasing the wrong thing, be very specific about what your heart desires. Pages clipped from catalogs and links to websites help. Don't be too mercenary, however. Always include items that don't cost a small fortune. Brass halter nameplates and bridle tags engraved with your horse's name are inexpensive, simple to order, and serve as a nice memento.
