

Experience It All

The American Quarter Horse Association's Regional Experience offers far more than just horse show competition.

By Elizabeth Moyer

June 2007

If you are interested in showing American Quarter Horses but don't know where to start, feel a little hesitant about competing or are just looking to expand your horizons with horses, there's now an event designed for you. The American Quarter Horse Association's Regional Experience is more than just a horse show. Taking place in 10 regions across the country this summer, the events are designed to promote participation at all levels—from meeting an American Quarter Horse for the first time to encouraging new and returning AQHA competitors.

For the full article, pick up the June 2007 issue of HORSE ILLUSTRATED.

Do you like this excerpt? Subscribe Now to read more like it.