A variety of respected clinicians will be on hand for riding demonstrations and lectures.

Though Southern California is currently experiencing an unusual cold snap, it's hoped that the annual west coast presentation of Equine Affaire will warm things up, at least for horse lovers. The horse expo will run from Feb. 1-4 at Fairplex in Pomona, better known as home to the Los Angeles County Fair. A variety of respected clinicians will be on hand for riding demonstrations and lectures, most notably Tim Grubb for hunter and jumper riders, Hilda Gurney for dressage enthusiasts and Ted Robinson for fans of working cow horses. And then, of course, there's all that wondrous shopping! For more information, visit www.equineaffaire.com.
