Okay, so maybe you don't have $100,000 to plunk down on a stud fee. You might not even be interested in breeding a Thoroughbred racehorse. But if you like to window shop, or barn browse, go to www.thoroughbredtimes.com and click on the link to the interactive stallion directory. There you'll find a long list of many of North America's most popular stallions in the racing industry. Beyond mere statistics, you'll also get opportunities to see clips of the horses racing, cavorting in their paddocks, or being walked and trotted in-hand to give viewers the opportunity to evaluate their movement and natural balance. Plus, you'll get a glimpse of the lifestyles of these rich and famous racehorses.
